It's a big day Monday for Eastern!

The long-awaited day on which 110-year-old Eastern Michigan College becomes a university is almost here.

Monday morning, college switchboard operators will begin greeting callers with "Eastern Michigan University" and college printing will begin bearing the new EMU seal.

The date which state legislators have fixed for the official changeover is June 1 — just two weeks before this spring's commencement exercises at which the first group of seniors to receive EMU diplomas will graduate. No special ceremonies have been planned to mark the transition, and outside of the few superficial items already noted, there won't be any major noticeable changes for awhile. The designation of Eastern as a state university, however, promises intellectual and physical expansion in the future.

Eastern hung onto its title of "Eastern Michigan College" for only three years, since 1956, when it was renamed from Michigan State Normal College. Before that, it was Michigan State Normal School.

College opens new health facilities

Needed facilities for meeting the health needs of Eastern Michigan students were made available this week with the opening of the new Glendadine C. Snow health service building Monday.

Located west of Buell and Downing residence halls, the new building has a regular capacity of 30 beds, a notable increase over the old facilities at the former health service building. 50 additional beds will be available in case of emergency, and in the event of a disaster, space for 150 additional patients could be utilized provided additional equipment and staff could be secured.

The third floor of the new building is for in-patient use, the main, or second, floor is for outpatient service and the ground floor includes a kitchen, record and medical storage, a conference room and housekeeper quarters.

Until all space is needed for medical purposes, the admissions office and the guidance office of the health service will be located on the main level.

Dr. Olga Sirola continues to be director of the Health Service.

Name more new staff members for '59-'60 Echo, Concepts

The positions of associate editor, assistant editor, sports editor and editor-in-chief for the summer session of The Echo and editor and art editor of Concepts were filled this week by the Board in Control of Student Publications.

Bill Forster, present Echo sports editor, will move up to the notch of Associate Editor to succeed Dave Elsila, who will be next year's editor. Dan Shirmer is the new assistant editor and Ken Balcoff is new sports editor.

A junior from Adrian, Michigan, Forster, 20, became sports editor of The Echo last fall. Previously he served as a general sports writer. He is a history major and is working for a junior-senior education certificate.

Shirmer is a sophomore from Trenton, Michigan, and is a social science major on a junior-senior high school curriculum. Balcoff, a sophomore from Detroit, is a present member of The Echo's sports staff.

Helen Bender

Helen Bender, senior student from Chicago, Ill., and former assistant editor of The Echo was selected by the Board to be editor of The Echo for the 1959 summer session.

Named editor-in-chief of Concepts, the student literary and art magazine, was Jerry Rodgers, a junior. Jeanne Cesarz was sel-

Night robbery nets $30 from fraternity house

Thieves made away with about $30 in cash from an early morning robbery at an Eastern Michigan College fraternity house this week.

The money, some of it from the fraternity's social fund and the remainder from billfolds of student residents was taken from the Kappa Phi Alpha house at 122 North Normal St.

Ypsilanti city police said the burglary probably took place between 4:00 and 6:30 a.m. Sunday morning. According to a fraternity member, most of the 21 residents of the house were away for the weekend and the money stolen was taken from a table on which the students remaining in the house had placed their billfolds.

The local robbery, police said, followed a wave of more than 20 similar burglaries at fraternity houses in Ann Arbor since last September.

Promote 20 faculty members

Faculty promotions for twenty members of the EMC teaching staff were announced today.

Four members of the faculty advanced in rank from associate to professor. They are Earl A. Roth of the Department of Business Studies, who came to EMC in 1954; Miss Marion F. Stowe of the Department of English and Speech who joined the staff of EMC in 1923; Howard Blackenburg of the Department of History and Social Sciences, who came to teach at the college in 1938; and Duane G. Chamberlain of the Department of Industrial Education and Applied Arts, who joined the faculty in 1931.

13 faculty members were moved up in rank from assistant professor to associate professor. Their departments and their names follow: Department of Education, Robert L. Anderson and Israel Woronoff; Department of English and Speech, Catherine Ackerman, William Bos and Thomas L. Dume; Department of Foreign Languages, Eugene M. Gibson and Francisco Villegas; Department of History and Social Sciences, Donald W. Disbrow; Department of Mathematics, Miss Madeline L. Early; Department of Music, Mitchell Osadchuk; Department of Natural Science, Herbert H. Caswell; Department of Physical Education, Mrs. Barbara J. Borusch; and Department of Physics, Karl A. Parsons.

Three men were advanced in rank from instructor to assistant professor. They are Dean S. Barnard and Edgar L. Jones of the Department of English and Speech, and William A. Kneller of the Department of Geography.

Attention Seniors

Seniors should pick up commencement announcements on Tuesday, June 2, in McKenny Hall. Please do not delay.

Award new scholarship to Jones sophomore

Marilyn Mitchell, a sophomore, has been awarded the first annual Jones Hall scholarship of $75.

The cash grant was made possible by a fund set up in memory of Joyce Roser McKibbon by the alumni of Sigma Tau Gamma. Mrs. McKibbon was a former resident of Jones Hall.

Campus radio station hoped for by fall

A campus-wide radio network, utilizing the electrical wiring setup of the college, is expected to be in operation by the second month of classes next fall, a spokesman for the new WEMU Broadcasting Guild said this week.

Operation of the station, however, is contingent on the availability of funds, although necessary apparatus for broadcasts is available, he said. At present a station, utilizing dormitory wiring, serves Brown and Munson residence halls.

The new Broadcasting Guild, made up of students interested in radio and TV projects, elected new officers last week and announced plans for a two-hour long radio presentation by the advanced radio class for next Tuesday, June 2, in Quirk Theatre.

The broadcast program will be

Editorially Speaking:

Time for student action

The recent revelation that Michigan college and university professors are being enticed out of the state by promises of high, steady pay should spur students to do what they can to pressure our Lansing legislature to get the state back on an even financial keel.

When stubbornness on the part of a group of politicians threatens to create a second-rate group of educators in the state because of lack of job security and proper facilities, then the time has come for drastic action.

Students can do two things, short of a Lansing demonstration: We can write letters now to our state representatives and state senators urging a quick solution to the problem and expressing our disappointments, and we can get our parents to do the same.

A few thousand letters from those most concerned with the future of education in our state may well be the needed prod that our law-makers need.

A thank you

The Echo staff, we like to think, has worked its hardest this past year to bring students a steadily-improving, professional quality newspaper. We have welcomed your criticisms and plaudits and have tried to institute changes which you have indicated you want.

Our job has been guided this year by a most capable editor-in-chief, Nancy Harper, without whose hard work and direction, our newspaper would have been impossible.

The Echo staff members thank Miss Harper, who will be graduating in June, and wish her every success in her future occupation.

Weekly Official Bulletin

Publication of any notice in the Weekly Official Bulletin is to be considered official notification for all members of the college community. All persons are responsible for reading the bulletin each week.

Notices for the Weekly Official Bulletin must be turned in to Room 201, Pierce Hall (to Mr. Green) by 10 a.m. on Wednesday. They must be typed and should be marked "For Weekly Official Bulletin."

Work Available

Applications are now being accepted for work during summer and fall registration in the office of the Vice President for Instruction, Pierce 146.

In order to be eligible to work for fall registration, the student must be pre-registered, academically eligible (2.0), and not doing student teaching.

Honesty to friends

by C. W. Cheng

One important factor that should be considered when we profess to be honest and sincere with our close friends is that one must first be truthful to himself before he can be honest with his friends.

It is true that when one is fair and honest to those whom he respects — even to the point of criticizing them — that he might hurt the personal feelings of his friend or even curtail the mutual relationship.

Yet it seems that if a warm personal relationship had previously existed that all people involved should be mature enough to appreciate the honest character of their friends. How often does this occur, however? More than likely, the friend to whom advice and criticism is given will scorn his friend or feel his friend is disloyal.

Definitely one can question whether the truthfulness one offers will be for the better but then even honesty, at times, may touch upon a chance we sometimes take. Chances are one of the concepts in human life that makes life, per se, worth living and pure honesty, even if it touches on chance, is a personality trait that deserves honor if the person does not mistakenly fool himself in his own honesty.

What's wrong with men?; panel dicusses hot topic

by Mary Bush

Four women discussed the topic, "Is there something wrong with the modern American male?" at a Women's League forum last week.

Panel members were Mrs. Notley Maddox, wife of Prof. Maddox of the Department of English; Miss Bess Hyde, head resident of Buell Hall; Miss Peggy Steig, professor in the Physical Education Department; and Mrs. Richard Edwards, who teaches in the Education Department.

Mrs. Maddox pointed out the lowered intellectual goals of the male, saying that he was giving up the challenge of such fields as science and mathematics to marry and rear a family. Too many young men, she feels, are going through college quickly to get out and make money.

The weakness in men today is that they have lost the good manners of the past, Miss Hyde stated. They no longer know how to act politely for the benefit of the people around them.

The female role of today is defined by the male, said Mrs. Edwards; a man wants a mistress, a maid, and a taxi driver. She also pointed out a weakness in the society as a whole, the fact that people have lost their ability to "play." A routine of organized living and recreation has replaced the more relaxed life of the past.

A male in the audience presented the argument that there is nothing wrong with the male but with the female. The female college graduate is educated for a career and is not prepared for the duties of maintaining a home.

An immediate reply to this charge came from a woman spectator who contended that a man with this attitude was insecure and afraid of competition, unintelligent, and domineering.

Support for Mrs. Maddox's stand came from a member of the audience who agreed that intellectual laziness is a common trait of college males.

No solution was derived from the discussion, and no clearly defined conclusions were reached. However, those present heard many diverse and interesting ideas and points of view expressed.

Skits, dances highlight langnage festival

The eleventh annual Foreign Language Festival was held last Saturday, May 23, in Quirk Auditorium.

The morning session began with a welcoming address from President Eugene B. Elliott whose talk was followed by readings in French and Spanish by representatives of the neighboring high schools. Well prepared skits and dances of foreign countries highlighted the afternoon program.

Guest students were provided with guided tours of the campus.

APO installs chapter officers

Installation of officers for the Eastern Michigan chapter of Alpha Phi Ohega, national service fraternity, highlighted the spring banquet of the group last Sunday.

Eugene Miller was installed as president, Phil Campbell as first vice-president, Ron Yahr as second vice-president, Peter Sherrick as recording secretary, John Collins as corresponding secretary, David Prakken as treasurer, Alan Gibson as historian and Tom Ensign as sergeant-at-arms.

Name finalists in writing contest

A senior from Detroit, Marilyn Kelly, placed three times in the list of finalists for the all-campus writing contest sponsored by Concepts, student literary and art magazine.

The winning entries, which were announced this week, will be published in the spring issue of the magazine, to be distributed to students during exam week.

The finalists will complete with winners of next fall's writing contest when grand prizes, totaling more than $100 in cash, will be awarded. The contest winners will be chosen from this semester's and next semester's finalists.

In the first group of winners are the following:

Short essay: John Gardiner, William Johnston, Marilyn Kelly, Carol Marine, Richard McGrath and Lawrence Reith.

Poetry: Alex McKee, Marilyn Kelly, Barb Reichert, Marcelle Mason, Mrs. Grace George, Warren Aaronson, Marlene Grix and Eleanor Dudley.

Essay: Marilyn Kelly, Barb Reichert, Carol Howard, Gerald T. Foley, Gerald Kohs, Cathy Workman, Gerald Welch and Ronald J. Rucher.

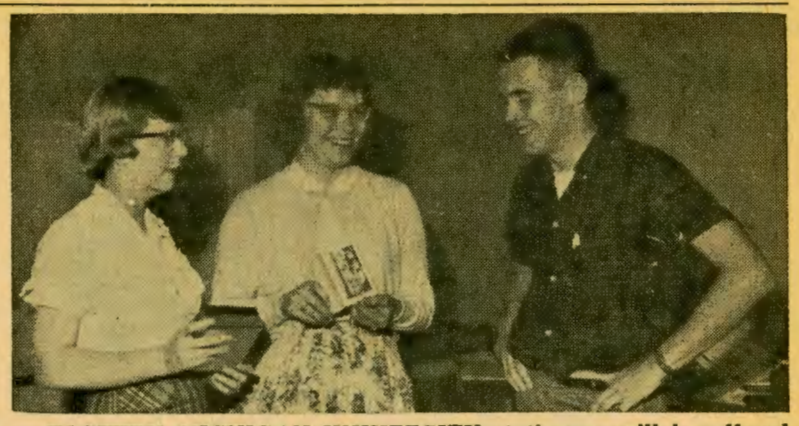
Education fraternity initiates twelve

Phi Delta Kappa, national education fraternity, held its semi-annual initiation banquet on May 20 at the Golden Apple Restaurant in Ann Arbor.

Prof. Stanley Gex was master of ceremonies of the affair which included Dr. Charles Shaw as guest speaker.

Outstanding senior and graduate students formally initiated into the fraternity at the banquet were: Jack Blaine, Arthur Froeberg, William Graham, James Lampky, Donald Makielski, Gene Megiveron, Larry Ordowski, Alexander Rosko, Charles Sheets, Fred Stilwell, Wayne Vasher, and Fred Wagner.



EASTERN MICHIGAN UNIVERSITY stationery will be offered for the first time to students this afternoon and Friday by members of the Stoic Society. Proceeds from the sale, which will take place in McKenny Hall basement, will go to the honor group's loan fund. Above, Stoics Nancy Harper and Donna Deter sell the first $1.00 box.

Michigan display remains at library

A selected bibliography of publications, audio-visual aids, and other resources of information about Michigan has been prepared by the college library, and copies are available at the desk.

Both the list and a Michigan exhibit in the reference room were prepared as part of Michigan Week observance. The display will remain until the end of the semester.

FRED CHYNCHUCK, senior from Detroit, has been chosen as the 1959 Homecoming chairman. A former member of Student Council and chairman of this year's elections, Fred has been active in student affairs. This year's Homecoming will have an International theme, with nations of the world to be represented by floats.

EMC cops first, third and fourth in "our" league

In sports biggest weekend at EMC during the 1958-59 school year the Huron warriors wound up three of four spring sports by placing third, fourth, and first in golf, tennis, and track respectively. in the IIAC finals.

Most disappointing in the golf picture was Captain Ed Meredith's ballooning to a 169 acumulative total, some 21 strokes off of medalist Jim King's pace-setting 148. However, even with Meredith having his troubles, the team managed to stay in a very favorable position after the first day's play, one stroke behind the leaders. Cliff Zill led the Eastern contingent with an even par 72.

However, on the second day, of the top four Hurons (only those counting in the final point tabulation) three were the victims of higher scores. Thus, Northern Illinois sneaked by Eastern into second two strokes better than the Hurons. Although not having much of a chance to catch the champion Western Illinois Leathernecks, the Hurons did put up a fine battle to finish in the top three. Southern Illinois, which might normally have been classified as sure first place material, finished in fourth some fifteen strokes behind EMC. Central Michigan finished in fifth and Eastern Illinois tied for last to round out the order of finishers in the golf race.

In tennis, Southern Illinois proved to be quite capable defending champions as they swept to finals victories in everything except the numbers four and five singles brackets. Top point getter for EMC was Bob Martian, who picked up two number three singles victories plus combining with Dick Davey to take one match in the doubles. Martian's total output amounted to exactly one half of the Hurons total for the two day tourney. Joe Seidl took one singles match in the number two division and combined with Benny Brose to pick up a second point in the doubles. Davey added a singles triumph in the number four bracket to wind up the scoring by Eastern. It should be pointed out that Southern has played and beaten such schools as Alabama, Minnesota, Tennessee, Iowa, Wisconsin, and Mississippi during the 1959 tennis season, indicating their tremendous strength. The Saluki's were followed by Eastern Illinois, Illinois Normal, EMC, Central Michigan, Northern Illinois, and Western Illinois in that order.

The most dramatic and favorable finish in the two day sports festival was furnished by the track and field contests. This was a battle of the individual stars of Eastern against the team depth of Central Michigan. Perhaps the most pleasing surprise of the finals for Huron fans was the 50' 6½" put of Al Day in the shot, just two inches off the record set by Jim "Moose" Allen two years ago. Day accomplished this on his last put. Hayes Jones' four firsts were quite remarkable on the rain-soaked track, especially his 20.9 second 220 establishing another league mark. In the 100 yard dash, Jones' only real competition came from fellow Huron Bill Stephens, and the same was true until half way through the 200 when Stephens pulled up lame with an apparent pulled muscle.

Mauri Jormakka stepped out of his preferred specialty, the half mile, and picked up victories in the mile (in which he set a new league mark) and the two mile. Finishing second in the two mile was Gurney Beach 1957 winner and record setter. Jim Robinson added another feather to his cap by setting a new league pole vault record. In the 880 Doug Carroll picked up a second to round out the EMC individual place getters.

However, it remained for the team portion of the meet for the EMC squad to pick up the necessary points for victory. With Central already across the finish line with plenty of room to spare, Doug Carroll fought off a desparate challenge from a Southern Illinois runner to take second in the mile relay and first in the meet.

HAYES JONES winner of four events in the IIAC finals Saturday and also recipient of the Olds trophy for top runner in the meet shows his wares in the low hurdles.
